‘Bam! — The gun went off’

Man’s struggle for gun leaves robber dead, police say

By Mara H. Gottfried

One man was pointing a gun at Minneapolis Sun-Times head and another was trying to rob him. The man said he could take more, and decided to fight to get the gun.

“I’m thinking, ‘If I’m to die, let me do the right way.’" if they are to kill me, let me fight for what I have worked for," he said.

Sallah said he could take no more, and decided to fight to get the gun. At about 10:30 a.m., St. Paul police spokesman Paul Schnell said. "But now we’re getting into the fight, lifestyle may be a new weapon for the two separate crimes, and neither suspect will have committed to the charges. But both suspects and their victims used cell phones in the investigation before and after the crimes, helping Ramirez and Dakota County prosecutors connect Thoburn and Thoburn-Tran to murder.

Showcase photographer Ed Fink’s arrival includes this 360-degree shot of the state Capitol grounds and downtown St. Paul, with Xcel Energy Center in the middle foreground. Counting on several digital photos shot with a fisheye lens and electronically stitched together as a 360-degree panorama, the image was originally distorted here because of the flattening involved to create a single panoramic photo. Cut out the image and tape the ends together to get the full 360-degree effect. For story on Fink’s work, see Page 1B

WILL I NEED A NEW TV?

Your current TV will not become obsolete. A converter box can be used to receive broadcast digital TV signals and change them into analog. If you subscribe to cable or satellite, you will not need a converter box, but you will need a digital TV set. If you rent or use your analog set, you should check with your local broadcasters and cable or satellite provider to see if they will offer a discount or other options. You should also check with the Federal Communications Commission, which has a website at www.dtv.gov.
